

Schlesinger Delivers Political Speech at IIT

by Dana Broach

Arthur Schlesinger is a democrat. In his talk Monday afternoon in the HUB ballroom, the former Special Presidential Advisor to John Kennedy personified the partisanship of the upcoming campaign. Speaking at the invitation of Union Board, Mr. Schlesinger strongly attacked the foreign and domestic policies of President Richard Nixon in a call to "re-organize our politics."

Sounding like a candidate rather than an analyst, Schlesinger outlined what he considered as the major issues of 1972: East Asia, specifically India, Japan, China, and Vietnam; the domestic economy; the welfare system, especially the Family Assistance plan—outlined in House and Senate Bill 1; and the prospects of racial justice under the new Burger Court.

Casting the President's May trip to China in a partisan framework, Schlesinger said, "Aside from its exploitation value, the Peking trip is commendable and valuable." But as foreign policy, Mr. Schlesinger claimed the trip "seems like an escape from foreign policy, a diversion from the reality of Vietnam." Analyzing the Chinese position, the historian contended that "they (the Chinese) cannot afford for the trip to be a failure. Their reasons are powerful — 49 Russian divisions on the frontier."

Turning directly to Vietnam, Schlesinger leveled the same salvos as the anti-war movement has fired since the late 1960's: "Our government has no policy to end the war." The speaker claimed also that Nixon was keeping Vietnam alive as an issue by "American moral and political encouragement" in continuing the war through Vietnamization. By implication, Schlesinger seemed to advocate an imposition of peace on all sides with the American withdrawal, with or without Vietnamese consent.

The former Advisor then began to dissect the Republican domestic stance. Schlesinger gave credit to the President for the fact that he inherited the crisis in the economic situation of the nation. He went further to call the President's "instant Keynesism" of Phases I and II "a reversal in the right direction."

Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

Analyzing the record for racial justice and progress since 1969,

Schlesinger said "there is one other great achievement — the destruction of the Supreme Court." Speaking in obvious opposition to the Burger Court, he said, "The court has become a sub-branch of John Mitchell's Department of Justice, the apparatus of oppression." Schlesinger castigated Nixon, exclaiming, "not leadership to accentuate differences, but to compose and unify."

Sounding like an advance-man for Senator George McGovern, a democratic hopeful, Schlesinger outlined four qualities he would seek in a candidate: credibility; an instinct for foreign affairs; a concern with human nature; and the courage of convictions. In the ringing platitudes of a totally political speech, Schlesinger claimed that McGovern was the candidate with these necessary qualities. "McGovern has better insight, is decisive, and committed. The Democrats can only win if they present the nation rational leadership."

Senator McGovern spoke Tuesday evening at a fund-raising function at the Pick-Congress. At the same time, Richard Nixon was addressing the nation, outlining a real peace proposal that could end the war in as little as six months. The President stole a little more thunder from the Democrats. It will take more than the partisanship of bitterness to win the 1972 election.

(After the talk and the question-answer session was over one student mentioned that fact that no one had asked Mr. Schlesinger about the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution. He indicated that Senator McGovern, whom Schlesinger supports for the Democratic presidential nomination, was one of the sponsors of that resolution passed in 1964. The resolution gave President Johnson a blank check in Vietnam, and this would seem to contradict the political instinct which the speaker claims McGovern possesses.)

Charlie Byrd Highlights Homecoming Festivities

Beginning February 18, Union Board has planned one full week of activities for this year's Homecoming. The week will include contests, cartoons, and films and will end at a dinner dance at McCormick Place.

To start the week's activities, Union Board has chartered a bus to IIT's game on February 18 vs. Northeastern. Charlie Byrd will appear in concert in the HUB auditorium on Saturday the 19th. Throughout the following week UB will present cartoons in the HUB with two feature-length films being shown on Wednesday the 23rd: "The Fearless Vampire Killers" and "Those Daring Young Men in their Jaunty Jalopies." Two contests are being held, one for the decorations of the McCormick Place hall. A $100 prize is being awarded and students should sign up in Room 106 Fowler Hall. For the other contest, Union Board will place clues to the location of the mooseberry bush throughout the campus. The clues will lead the winner to a $50.00 prize. The actual weekend of Homecoming begins with the IIT home game against St. Ambrose on Friday, February 25. The highlight of these activities will come Saturday, the 26th, at the McCormick Place Dinner Dance. Providing music will be the Ace Trucking Company. Bids are ten dollars per couple and can be bought in Room 106 Fowler Hall. As an added bonus, the first 250 couples to order bids will receive free tickets to the Auto Show.

Many students are still wondering what happened to the Commander Cody concert which was scheduled for last Friday. When the group arrived at IIT Friday afternoon for rehearsals, Union Board provided them with what they considered a good sound system, a provision in the group's contract. The group expected four-teen microphones, but received only five from UB. When they were not given the additional microphones, Commander Cody called radio stations announcing that the concert had been cancelled. Union Board did not know of the action until students began calling, confused over the concert's supposed cancellation. The concert remained cancelled, and Union Board plans to take action if only to be refunded for money spent on equipment.

If you can drive — and survive in Chicago traffic without killing a taxi-driver every other day — CTA wants you to buy a ticket to their February 5th Road Rally. The CTA bug, which is hitting everyone in the wallet for $2.00, is at the Northeast entrance to the HUB. Pick up a ticket if you're passing by.

The committee, headed by Ken Hazlett, has been planning the rally since November. The ideal time, they reasoned, to offer the greatest challenge to the parking lot Andy Granatellis would be in the middle of a Chicago winter with 30 feet of snow and ice on the Yearbook Returns To IIT?

"The purpose of Integral (the IIT yearbook) is to present somewhat of a story of the year, a glimpse of what happened here," according to Integral Editor, Tom Zeinz.

One of the new "happenings" is the Integral itself. After one year without a yearbook, a movement was started last year in ATS to re-establish Integral. Many people questioned whether students really wanted a yearbook but a tentative contract was set up for 600 copies. Last semester, the Integral staff was organized and the work began.

To date, sales have been low but they have been better than previous years. Editor Zeinz mentioned, "The most Integrals ever sold was 300. This year we have been paid for 250 books and have commitments for 50 more." He further stated, "There is no real quota. The contract is flexible and we can change the number of books ordered from the publisher up to February 15." Integrals will be sold in the HUB and in McCormick Lounge starting February 7. The price per copy is $2.

Advertisements were another part of the financial controversy. No ads will appear in Integral. Zeinz explained his position this way: "The staff decided not to have ads. I don't think it's worth the bother to have 3 pages of ads. Considering the financial situation of the nation, it would be hard to get that many. Besides, there are aesthetics: I don't feel ads belong in a yearbook."

The Integral Editor felt that "organizations doing what they normally do" should be in the book. This would include sports events, UB activities and other organizations' programs. "A mug shot or a shot of guys standing around a piano does not give a true picture of what is happening," Zeinz commented. To give a more general view of the student body, Integral will contain pictures of all four classes. In the past there were just photos of seniors. There will be a 15 page index as well.

This year is a year of growing for Integral. Zeinz summed it up by saying, "We have got the nucleus of a staff for next year. Hopefully, the editor can then spend more time working on the book and less time bickering with people." He added that there is plenty of room in the yearbook staff for new people and that new ideas are always welcomed.

Mr. Zeinz originally started on the yearbook as business manager last year, promising to find an editor-in-chief. Eventually, however, he was forced to take over that position as well since no one offered to fill the job.

expressways and roads of the rally route.

The CTA officers have also proclaimed a party the evening of the 5th to celebrate Josh Protzbie's creation of the Road Rally in 1936 after being lost in the English backroads for 87 hours. To be held at 1940 West Irving Park Road, the CTA sponsored party will begin with the first arrival from the road rally and continue until 1 am. They are offering live music and beer, all for the inflationary price of $1.00, also payable by anyone at the bug in the HUB.

Members of CTA are expecting several hundred cars to be lined up snorting in anticipation in the HUB parking lot by 4 pm February 5th. If you can make it there by then, you can survive the rally and party.

Course Evaluation: Better Luck Next Time

Course evaluation is one of those catchy topics one often hears raised by Concerned Students; it's an area where a student group such as ATS can actually bring about some constructive change in the IIT environment. Since everyone gripes about how Dr. Whatshisname is running this course or that, course evaluation is a student activity that would enjoy rousing participation.

At the end of last semester, ATS conducted a course evaluation survey in the College of Liberal Arts (the results appear elsewhere in this issue) — but the way it was handled may have killed its value.

Course evaluation forms were distributed by ATS to faculty members, who were to hand the forms out to their students. But once the forms were filled out, the instructors collected them — and made the tabulations themselves. Not all courses returned results, and those that did reflect a generally favorable opinion of the courses and instructors. It seems a little too good to be true—or useful.

Does it make sense to let an instructor tabulate the evaluations his students have of him? Not unless this wouldn't matter — but the course evaluation program is designed to indicate needed curricular changes, and thus must provide data for whole departments, the faculty senate, and the administration.

Anyone who is interested in being Editor-in-Chief of the Student Directory for next year should contact Pam Rekar at 225-9071 or ext. 336. Also petitions for ATS assemblymen are still available and will be available for the rest of the semester in the Dean of Students office. Students should know that they may sign one ATS Assemblymen's petition and also one Class Representative's petition as well. Assemblymen may also receive a one-week extension on their petitions by contacting Pam Rekar at the phone listed above.

ATS has acknowledged that the evaluation procedure could have been better. No doubt ATS will come up with a viable tabulation plan (the august body has all semester to work on it). One suggestion will be given here.

ATS could place proctors in each class session while voting takes place, and collect the votes afterward. With enough planning and schedule-juggling, the proctoring and collection could be handled by a few volunteers in a few days' time. Then, the Educational Affairs Committee, or any group that doesn't have a personal stake in the individual course results, could tabulate the votes and distribute the results — with personal notices to the faculty members involved before full publication, if possible.

Getting a good evaluation procedure isn't the real problem. ATS must work now to get the administration to respond to all these efforts at evaluation — even though the first was a false start.

Give Students a Voice — Now

This past month, IIT has had the pleasure of receiving a $50,000 gift from Clinton Stryker, a Milwaukee industrialist. The donation is especially welcome inasmuch as it comes during a period when colleges are being forced to cut back on their activities because sources of income have been diminishing rather than increasing. It is a very pleasant surprise, and one which we can thank Mr. Stryker for without sounding overzealous or sycophantic.

There is one aspect of the gift, however, which is a little disturbing, and that is the provision concerning the distribution of the funds. According to the rules under which the fund was set up, the Dean of Students will decide how the Student Activity Fund will be operated; he decides which organizations will receive money, how much they will get, and when they will get it.

There is no provision for a student voice in how the money should be distributed, and if this indeed will be a Student Activity Fund, there ought to be some way in which the students can limit the absolute control the Dean of Students now holds over the fund.

As the situation stands right now, the fund will be set aside and the interest used for various purposes. That may be an excellent idea, but the students still should have some say in it. For the last couple of years the student activities budget has remained constant despite rising costs, and a regular supplement to that budget might be helpful. This may be the worst thing or the best thing that can be done with the fund, but, regardless it is a possibility that should be explored.

Whatever decision is eventually made on the funds the allocation should be made jointly, so that it will reflect the informed wisdom of the Dean of Students office and the vested interests of the students.

How exactly this can be achieved must be taken care of by ATS, our student government. Perhaps an advisory board or committee should be introduced. In any case, we cannot afford to pass up this opportunity.

Dear TN,

Congratulations regarding your editorial last week on the ATS assembly. You have hit at the core of what seems to be a pseudo-identity crisis of this assembly. As a fall semester first-time assemblyman, and a hopeful candidate this spring, I was constantly bothered by a basic inability to realize the raison d'être of the assembly. Your suggestion of an informal assemblymen-only meeting to define our role in the IIT community, with regards to present circumstances, is a very good one. If others are reluctant to sacrifice (and it is a sacrifice) some of their free-period time for a gathering of this sort, I am not one of them. It is imperative that we keep from being a rubberstamp to the ATS executive council, even if said council is in basic agreement with us. ATS must never be a one-man government, with compliance to the president for sheer expediency.

If any other assemblymen feel this way and want to do something, I would like to discuss this with them. My phone number is listed in the Student Directory.

Dear EIC:

With all the commotion going on about

Tech News and how it's changing back and everything, I saw that there was nothing written about personals. You people gave us poll results and they said that some people wanted more personals and some people said there was enough of them and then there was people who said there's just enough.

So I went through the paper and looked for the personals and there weren't any! Maybe some of you people on the staff think that the personals are a waste of time but lots of people just read the paper for them and look for the ones that they put in. You even said there will be more room in the paper and more space for things, and there aren't even any personals. You're going to lose a lot of people if this keeps up. Sometimes there are some good articles in Tech News and sometimes some real bad ones, but with personals out, I'm not going to find out because I won't read it.

P.S. If this sounds too pushy I'm sorry, but if you claim to be a student newspaper then you ought to fill the requests of people if there's enough of them that want something. Bring back the personals! (Name withheld)

(Ed. note: I only received 5 personals last week. See page 5.)

Fall Semester Course Evaluation Results Returned, Tabulated

During the last several weeks of the fall semester, the Association of Tech Students sent out course evaluation questionnaires to various departments. Although registration is long gone, the results of the poll may still be of some value to those people who want to drop a course with a WP (withdraw passing).

The average scores to each question have been arranged in tabular form and are listed below. The minimum score for questions "c" through "m" was one and the maximum was five. The first column indicates the number of people who filled out the survey; the second and third columns were computed as a value of one for a "yes" reply and a zero for a "no" answer, with the average being somewhere in-between. N/A means not applicable.

QUESTIONS:

- a. Are you required to take this course? Yes (1) or No (0)
b. Are the objectives of this course clear? Yes (1) or No (0)

c. Is the amount of work required appropriate for the credit received? Very little work 1 2 3 4 5 Too much work.

d. Does the course go too fast or too slowly for the best understanding? Too slowly 1 2 3 4 5 Too fast.

e. How would you rate the contribution of the textbooks(s) and assigned readings of the course? Poor 1 . . . 5 Excellent.

f. Are the labs (or written assignments) worth the time spent on them? Not at all worthwhile 1 . . . 5 Very Worthwhile.

g. How adequate were the examinations, graded problems, etc. as evaluators of your knowledge and understanding of the course matter? Very inadequate 1 . . . 5 Very adequate.

h. How orderly and systematic were the instructor's lectures? Not at all 1 . . . 5 Very much so.

i. How much did the instructor encourage the students to think and reason critically or analytically about the general subject matter of the course? Strongly discouraged 1 . . . 5 Strongly encouraged.

j. How well does the instructor answer questions? 1 — Attempts to ignore them or answers them very poorly. 2 — Gives vague answers which help a little but do not solve the problem. 3 — Gives just enough information to solve the problem. 4 — Answers the questions and elaborates on the implications and principles. 5 — Answers the questions and then goes beyond — uses the questions as a real learning tool.

k. In comparison with other courses you have had, how would you rate this instructor? (Use same scale as preceding question).
1 — Poor: Inferior, among the poorest I have ever had. 2 — Fair: Inadequate in some, but not all respects.

3 — Good: Solid, competent, average course. 4 — Very good: Has many characteristics of an outstanding course. 5 — Outstanding: Superior course, among the best I have ever taken.

l. In comparison with other instructors you have had, how would you rate this instructor? (Use same scale as preceding question).

m. To what extent do you feel that this questionnaire effectively conveys your overall evaluation of your instructor? To no extent 1 . . . 5 To a very great extent.

ATS Reviews Pass-Fail, PAC Meeting Results

by Dana Broach

ATS began its weekly convocations by introducing the new assemblymen to the fine art of reports. With a bare quorum of 8 assemblymen present in the ATS offices for the informal meeting, John Schuch, Chuck Haas, and Pam Rekar three of the ruling elite) explained the status of several ATS-initiated proposals.

Pass-fail has reached the Faculty Senate. Which means more waiting. The proposal has been approved by the Institute Curriculum Committee. There is a question, however, as to who else must approve the pass-fail recommendations. It is expected that the faculty as a whole will consider the proposal at their next meeting in April; and from there it may have to be sent to the Board of Trustees for final approval. Pass-fail is effectively a policy change for the Institute. All this means is that the earliest date of limited implementation is the fall semester of 1972. Under the current proposal, one general education elective outside of your department may be taken on a pass-fail basis. At present, the first semester will be a trial, to be followed by intensive evaluation again by faculty, students, and administration.

The course-evaluation report is in — a tabulation of data completely meaningless at first hurried glance to those uninitiated in the mysteries of statistics. 29 courses in the College of Liberal Arts and the Stuart School of Management and Finance are covered in this first evaluation. (See story above.)

Chuck Haas informed the assembly on the first President's Advisory Council meeting on December 20. The Council, after a heated debate, moved to recommend to the President that "he uses the good offices of his position to see that the charges against Howard Harvath, Ulrike Erwin, and Jan Hil-and not be pressed." The charges against the three who were arrested in November on the chapel steps, have been dropped. The PAC has agreed to meet again in February. The student members will meet within two weeks to consider items to be discussed at the next meeting of the full PAC.

John Schuch begged, as usual, for more people for the various school committees. The real work of ATS is done by the standing committees. Which right now means that a very few people are responsible for the policies of ATS. New people are needed especially for five academic committees: Registration, Library, Calendar, Catalogue, and General Education and Scholarship. The presidents of ATS (John Schuch), IDC (Tim Colburn), IFC (Dave Zook), and CTA (Ken Hazlett) will form a screening committee for the Dean of Students office for the appointments. If you are interested in serving on any of these academic committees, or any of the ATS standing committees (especially — Student Life), call Chuck Haas, AEPI, ext. 460.

The assembly was informed of some of the details of the Clinton Stryker fund, a $50,000 endowment for student activities. The fund, to be made available over a five year span, is exclusively for normally unbudgeted student activities and projects. The Dean of Students' Office will control the actual investment and allocation of the income. This is the first time a gift has been given to IIT which is to be used as a student activities fund and not solely for academic or physical building purposes.

A letter from Melvin Tracht, Institute Treasurer and Executive Secretary to the Board of Trustees, informed the assembly that the student observer proposal was "still under consideration." The assembly would like to get somebody, representing the students interests, on the Board, even without a voice or vote. The idea was submitted in early December.

The assembly will meet again next Tuesday at 12:45 pm.

The Duke: Bismuth, Fanny, Meat, Etc.

Golly, I feel just like John Mendelsohn or R. Meltzer. Imagine, me doing an interview with an up and coming group who expect to have some of their work released right soon.

Picture, if you will, a group that comes somewhere between Frank Zappa and, say, Firesign Theater or perhaps a very sophisticated Conception Corporation. Now picture people from a variety of backgrounds, and old bluesman who used to play with Jim Schwall and Lightnin' Hopkins; a guitarist that sat in with the Buffalo Springfield and has played "CSN & Y"-ish folk rock across the nation, a former editor of a small, just left of center, newspaper; a disc-jockey that at one time did the old Barney Pip schtick and now has moved to the GLD style; a self acclaimed pervert. To this already jumbled group toss in a trumpet player who can't remember anybody's name and calls everybody Steve, a bass player who has a tendency to fall asleep and a boy who has been a professional Boy Scout, a semi-pro chess player, a Catholic seminarian and a chemistry student at a big university among other things. From this varied assortment you can get an idea of what Bismuth is like. I think that the third Earl of Chatham correctly described them when he said "... insane, simply, positively and irrevocably insane ...". Enjoyable, too.

Their album, Let Me Show You What I Can Do With a Razor Blade, which will be released on the "Berserk" label, a subsidiary of Hot Zits, Inc., contains the moving "If you Wanna be a Lemon" backed up by the incongruous "Razor Back Lover" which features the screaming of an eight year old sow as she is cut by 47 rusty razor blades just before giving birth.

And you thought Alice Cooper was strange!

Buy it for $4.79 in any downtown record store or wait for a $1.98 bookstore special.

Charity Ball

Fanny

Reprise

A good album, but nothing to really rave about. You see Fanny is a common, run of the mill "good" group who just don't have anything to really say or do. The impact of them being an all girl group has passed and with it, perhaps, their reason for existence. Admittedly, "Cat Fever" and the title song, "Charity Ball" are catchy and perhaps ideal Top 40 material but if "Fanny" wants to be remembered in rock history, their next album had better be a lot more than just "good."

Canned Heat

Recorded Live in Europe V.A.

Ho Hum. Golly Gee Whiz Mr. Wizard isn't this (yawn) exciting. Don't you wish you were a radio station and got a free 25¢ mouth harp along with the L.P.? At least then you'd have something worthwhile.

P.S.

A. J. Weberman, if I see your name in one more paper or magazine or if I hear it on one more radio or TV show, I will personally track you down and extract my vengence from your rotting (rotted?) mind.

Recently Warner Bros. Records has offered to send a copy of the new Beach Boys L.P., "Surf's Up" if they send in their old "Surfin' Safari" album plus a dollar. My advice is to keep your old "Surfin' Safari" album and if you're really a Beach Boys freak, wait for about a year and pick up "Surf's Up" at a Goldblatt's $1.79 special.

Talking about prices, I walked into my neighborhood big-name record store last weekend and saw a bunch of albums marked "Reduced to $4.19." Now this intrigued me since I had just bought two of those same L.P.s at the same store for $3.79 each the week before. I went over and talked to the manager, who, after a little "ahemming" agreed and said that the price had been 40¢ less the previous week, but "we put $4.59 price tags on 'em, cross out the price and then put a $4.19 price tag on it. Nobody remembers from week to week."

"What about the wage-price freeze?"

"Nobody complains if we reduce the price from $4.59 to $4.19."

"But you really didn't."

"Look, you want it for $3.79. I'll sell it to you for $3.79, but leave . . . and don't tell anybody else."

So just pretend that I didn't say anything, and check your prices.

Cadets Tour Air Base

This past weekend, while it was snowing in Chicago, 14 Air Force ROTC cadets from IIT were enjoying the sun and the near-70 degree temperatures of South Carolina.

The cadets were visiting Charleston Air Force Base and its famous C-5 cargo plane. This plane is quite remarkable. It is as tall as a six-story building. It has 28 landing wheels. Both its tail and front end open to facilitate loading. A mechanism on board measures the weight and center of gravity of the plane while it is being loaded. With all of these capabilities it can still land on dirt runways and on almost every runway in the world.

Some interesting comparisons have been made with regard to the C-5's transporting capacity. The plane could carry six Greyhound buses or 68 Cadillacs. If C-5's would have been used in the 1947 Berlin airlift, it would have taken 10 planes instead of 300 to do the job.

value of the final margin. Indiana Tech shot only 33% from the field, and committed 29 fouls. This allowed the Hawks to clean up from the free throw line, winding up with a 31-14 bulge in charity tosses. The Hawks dominated the boards, with a 54-33 rebound edge. The bench play was excellent, helping the Hawks to a 24 point lead, the biggest of the night. Tom Skahill was hot from the field, leading the fine play with 28 points.

The Indiana Tech win ran the Hawk record to 8-6. They squared off against U. of Chicago and Illinois Benedictine this past Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Tonight they invade U. of Illinois-Chicago, in an attempt to avenge the loss the Chikas handed IIT in the IIT Holiday Tournament. Next Wednesday, the Hawks travel to Lake Forest for a game with the Foresters.

The Techawks are playing great ball, and part of the resurgence can be traced to the fine play of forward Ken Wayte. Wayte is a tough character, and when he steps onto the court, he plays hard. Ken rebounds viciously and still has the soft, outside touch that makes him IIT's third leading scorer. Wayte put on a tremendous performance in the Lewis game. "It was his best all-around game I've seen him play in my 3 years here," said Coach Delgado. . . . Also in for kudos is Wayne Boss. Wayne has been deployed as a forward at times of late, in order to take advantage of his outside shot, and

by Harvey Schultz

Faltering a bit right after returning from semester break, the IIT swimming team dropped to a 3-4 record after opening the season with two big victories. Coach Dennis Matuch's crew lost 3 of 4 meets, since the new semester began, to strong clubs, and faced College of DuPage yesterday. They are now practicing hard for the Feb. 5 Rockford Relays.

The Hawks closed out 1971 competition, Dec. 7, with a frustrating 57-56 loss to George Williams College in our home opener. The Techawks' depth and freestyle strength couldn't overcome GWC. The Hawks took only 5 of 13 firsts, but were in it all the way.

IIT got clobbered by U. of Illinois-Chicago on Jan. 19 at Ekco Pool, 75-26, opening the spring semester's activity. Only Steve Murray's win in the 200 yard backstroke could salvage some pride for the Hawks, who were clearly not in condition with only 2 days of workouts behind them. Too often, IIT was just touched out at the finish of a

The next day was a bit better, as the Hawks split a triangular, beating Lake Forest 59-44 and losing to U. of Chicago 59-54. U. of C. beat LFC 59-53. The Hawks ference meet on March 3-4. The Hawks have not looked bad, and should be a factor among older, more experienced clubs in those tough meets.

Off to a rocky start, the IIT took only four events, but were again in the running because of their depth. The poor overall conditioning of the team was a big factor in the loss to U. of C.

Another bitter loss followed last Saturday, Jan. 22, when an excellent Northeastern Illinois squad whipped IIT 90-23. The Techawks were missing three of their top men for various reasons, which didn't help matters. It's kinda tough for a young club to battle Northeastern while working to get in shape.

Coach Matuch is working his charges hard, shooting for the 3 major meets on the docket, the Rockford Relays, the NAIA District 20 meet on Feb. 25-26, and the Chicagoland Collegiate Con-wrestling team opened the 1972 portion of their schedule Wednesday, Jan. 26, when they took to the Keating Hall mats against St. Joseph's College. They participate in the Lake Forest quadrangular

Netters Drop Holiday Tournament

by Harvey Schultz

Getting the bad play out of their systems with most of their classmates mercifully not around to see it, the IIT basketball Techawks earned a last-place finish in Hall. The Hawks played 2 horrendous 28-29 at Arthur Keating Hall. The Hawks played 2 horrendous games, losing to Elmhurst, the eventual winner, and, shame of shames, to U. of Illinois at Chicago Circle.

The Elmhurst Bluejays, showing great depth and sharp shooting, copped the championship, and brought their season's record to 6-1, the best mark of anyone in the tournament. Wisconsin State-LaCrosse earned second place in the third annual event, and UICC took third.

Wisconsin St.-LaCrosse opened the festivities, with the Indians jumping off to an 11-0 lead and never looking back. Flashy freshman Rich Kruehl led his team to the 89-81 first round win with 25 points. Dave Brown had 24. Husky forward Tim Theisen topped UICC with 21. The Chikas were not able to penetrate, and their outside shooting was not sharp enough to carry them. The Indians had the game in hand all the way.

The nightcap of the first night's action saw the Techawks throw the ball everywhere but in the hole, and get bombed 81-59. The morbid details of that game and the loss to UICC the following night, 73-72, appeared in last week's issue. Suffice it to say that the team in IIT flannels were bad impersonators of the 4-0 Techawks of the first two weeks of the season. The net results of the final 1971 action for the Hawks was a berth in the finals for Elmhurst, and the consolation honors for UICC.

By far the best game of the tourney, and fittingly so, was the championship game, with Elmhurst emerging victorious to the tune of an 81-71 score. Wisconsin St.-LaCrosse opened the scoring, but Elmhurst had the upper hand for the majority of the first half — but not by much. The Bluejays' biggest lead for the opening 20 minutes was 5, and the Indians sliced that to one point, at 36-35 at the half.

Coach Phil Hey's Indians jumped off to a lead at the start of the second half, but that was short-lived. LaCrosse led 47-45 with 14:18 left in the contest — and that was the last time they saw the sunny side of the score board. Elmhurst, coached by Jon Hawthorne, outscored LaCrosse 25-8 in the next 10 minutes to bury the Indians under the biggest lead of the night, 15 points. LaCrosse made a couple of futile stabs at the Bluejays, but it was too little, too late. The Indians were massacred by the Bluejays, 81-71. Leading the way for the winners was John (Bones) Froeschner. The 6-2 senior forward was unerring in his aim from the outside both nights, and wound up the big game with 23 points. Jim Trench and Jim Bruseven each had 15. Dave Selbo, the outside man for the Indians, popped in 22. Froeschner, who wound up the leading scorer in the tournament, topped the all-tourney team as chosen by the coaches. Bluejays' center Cal Sanders also made the squad from the winners. IIT's Tom Skahill recouped a little pride for the hosts, as he was voted onto the All-tourney front line. Guards Kruehl and Selbo from Wisconsin St.-LaCrosse rounded out the squad. Greg Parker, the Techawks' non-stop guard, was voted the "Best Hustler" award.

Lewis, North Park Losses Ready Cagers For Future

by Harvey Schultz

Two losses by a total of 4 points can wreck up a guy's stomach, but considering the opposition, the IIT basketball performances last week were cause for optimism. Indeed, yours truly has never seen 2 coaches so heartened by frustration losses on consecutive nights. But Techhawk coach Tony Delgado and assistant Rich Swanson were very happy with their team's play against Lewis and North Park, and Indiana Tech, vs. whom the Hawks got back on the winning track.

It was heartbreak haven at Lewis College on Jan. 18, where the Hawks were up against a more talented Flyer team than in many a moon. The Techawks played almost a flawless second half (at least according to the coaches' game plan), but came up short to Delgado's alma mater, 78-77. Ken Wayne and Wayne Boss led the Techawks with 22 and 21 points respectively, and keyed a defense which almost contained Lewis' potent offense enough for the win. The Hawks were down by 5 with only 17 seconds to go in the game, then got two quick baskets to pull within one, but Wayne's desperation shot at the horn was just off the mark.

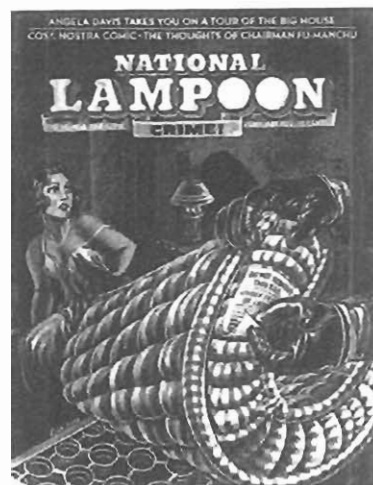

Though they lost, IIT outplayed their foe. The Hawks outrebounded a taller Lewis team 41-31, and showed the heart, guts, and determination of a championship ball club.

Not letting up for a moment, the Hawks ran into another club loaded with talent the next night, when North Park came to Keating Hall. The Vikings prevailed 62-59, but not until they slugged it out toe-to-toe with a persistent IIT club.

The game was tied 19 times, and the lead was never bigger than a few points at any juncture. The Techawks were unable to score in the last two minutes, in which time the Vikings broke a 59-59 tie for the win. Tom Skahill and Wayne Boss led the gallant Techawks with 19 apiece. Keith McDonald, star NPC guard, led all with 24.

Now, two tough losses like that could discourage a team and cause them to go flat, but the Techawks came to play Saturday night, Jan. 22, when they lambasted Indiana Tech, 89-69. The Techawks burst out to a 10-2 lead, and were headed only once in waltzing to the win. After gaining a 26-24 lead with 5 minutes left in the first half, the only question was the absolute
